

Breast Cancer

Screening and prevention

The American College of Radiology and Society of Breast Surgeons recommends that women at average risk of breast cancer should receive annual screening mammograms starting at age 40.

Monthly breast self-exam and annual physical exams by a doctor are essential parts of an overall breast cancer screening strategy.